

Adam M. Peters

Partner

Adam M. Peters joined Wilkinson Barker Knauer, LLP after five years in private practice. He advises the firm's cable and telecommunications clients on a variety of federal and state regulatory issues related to media and telecommunications policy. Mr. Peters also works on regulatory issues for emerging communications platforms such as the smart grid, and other utility regulatory and litigation matters and advises clients on the impact of various federal and state privacy laws and regulations.

Earlier in his career, Mr. Peters was Director of the Silicon Flatirons Center at the University of Colorado School Of Law. In that capacity, he co-taught a seminar on the Law & Economics of the Information Age. Mr. Peters also has state regulatory experience, serving as Special Assistant to the Colorado Public Utilities Commission.
